Turning Arguments into Agreements

Protecting the Planet, Protecting the Future

From MUNdane to MUN , a journey to cultivate VOICE, CHOICE, OWNERSHIP for all the Junior MUNners

Guided by Vision, Driven by Passion : Thank-You Ma'am

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to our Respected HOS Ma'am for giving us the valuable opportunity to conduct the AGS Junior Model United Nations(AGSJMUN). Your constant encouragement, trust and guidance have been the driving force behind this enriching experience.

The AGSJMUN provided a wonderful platform for our young MUNners to explore global issues, engage in thoughtful discussion and showcase their diplomacy, confidence, and critical thinking skills. They displayed remarkable enthusiasm, throughout the session, reflecting the school's commitment to nurturing leadership and global citizenship.

With warm regards and deep appreciation.

From Learners to Leaders: The First AGSJMUN Journey

As we launch the first chapter of AGSJMUN, it gives me immense pleasure, as the Secretary-General, to have mentored and guided the young MUNers of PYP 4, 5, and Grade 6. With the theme “Protecting the Planet, Protecting the Future,” AGSites participated wholeheartedly, showcasing commendable research, eloquent presentations, effective collaboration, and well-crafted resolutions across their respective committees.

This platform boosted confidence while instilling empathy, responsibility, and a deep sense of care for the planet. It plays a vital role in grooming young learners to think critically, act responsibly, and prepare to face global challenges in an increasingly interconnected world.

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to our Head of Schools, Dr. Hima Doshi, for giving me with the opportunity to preside as the Secretary-General of the AGS Junior MUN, and for her unwavering support and encouragement in all our endeavours.

Agenda

1. Protecting endangered species
2. Reducing plastic waste
3. Clean water

Day 2 - From Debate to Done!

If Day 1 felt like the start of an Indian daily soap, Day 2 gave us the perfect season finale.

Resolutions were finally passed that were smooth and satisfying, like a plate of rajma chawal on a Sunday afternoon.

Delegates moved from heated debates to real decisions, showing that when people come together (even in blazers and badges), real change can happen. From protecting wildlife to pushing for clean water, every resolution had meaning.

And the best part? The committee didn't just get work done—they got noticed. UNEP earned well-deserved appreciation, like rain after a Delhi summer.

All in all, Day 2 wrapped up with purpose, progress, and just the right amount of drama.

The FUN-MUN (UNEP)

Day 1 - What started as a slow cricket match soon spiced up just like your favourite Indian daily soap thanks to the perfect blend of votes, arguments, motion, and a dash of drama! The delegate of India dominated the general speakers list just Indian daily soaps dominate TV screen during dinner time. UNEP addressed some of the mirror moves countries are taking towards the environment just like a plot twist in daily soaps that keep the audience guessing from the delegate of India's bold move for protecting endangered species to the delegate of Japan's call for clean water for all, day 1 witnessed layers of meaningful discussion

What would you do to keep your environment clean??

- have a dance party all night
- plant some tree around you
- eat your favorite food
- play all the time

AGSJMUN witnessed a whirlpool of dust and detergent as delegates transformed into Avengers of Cleanliness. What started began as a diplomatic dance soon spiraled into bloc battles, with intense debates over hygiene agendas.

A sight to watch was the face off between Russia, China and India that could have boiled water. Afghanistan's stance made even the germs nervous. Meanwhile Norway ,Brazil, Ukraine, Sweden and Sri Lanka barely made a mark much like expired soap, present but ineffective.

Fun Fact - Maldives on the other hand ghosted the conversation entirely, almost siding with the germs.

Day 2 - Sanitizing the Debate!

After Day 1's dust-up and detergent drama, Day 2 aimed to sanitize the chaos with resolutions but not everyone made the cut. Some countries came prepared with solid plans to eradicate germs like the best hand sanitizer, while others missed the deadline or couldn't get their motions through.

The committee kept the momentum clean and focused, proving that even if not every idea gets accepted, the fight against dirt and disorder is very much alive.

All in all, Day 2 was about cutting through the mess and moving closer to a spotless victory.

ECC - Educational and Cultural Committee

Chair: Rianna Mehta | Co-Chair: Prashi Kothari

Press: Aaliyah Serrao | Admin: Aaira Barbhaya

Junior MUN Educational Cultural Committee was the version of a family WhatsApp group on a Tuesday morning.

China and USA were Head-to-Head like a divorced couple who swore that they can move on but can't stop arguing nor stand each other when they met. Nepal brought the grandma energy who had a confused ideal about technology but nevertheless has issues moving on, while Japan tries to defend it's honour by its anime and gaming industries and the group chat pours all its steaming hot tea over tiktok.

(Wow... Hot indeed!!)

Maldives, UAE, Sweden and Finland were like a middle sibling - Barely typing, but who knows what they're planning.

Our "Too Cool" for the rules rebellious younger siblings China, Sri Lanka and Brazil got bared for 5-10 minutes for gossiping with their "oomfs"

Agenda

I. Importance of Reading

2. Promoting Arts and Culture

3. Advantages and Challenges of Digital learning

Day 2: Getting Things Done

If Day 1 was like a lively family WhatsApp group on a busy morning, Day 2 was when everyone got serious even the "too cool for the rules" crew joined in without missing a beat.

The educational team kept it real with their resolutions, practical, straightforward, and totally doable even for AGS. No fancy drama, just good ideas that make sense.

By the end of the day, the delegates pulled together and got their resolutions passed, proving that even the wildest family chats can come together when it counts.
